

THE Clearing.
COMMUNITY

There's a place beyond the Forest of Fear where women who know the woods of worry gather. It's a place to rest, revive, and refuel for the journey ahead. It's filled with a community that calls out, "You're not alone!" And it gathers truth as if it were tools used to help other women make the trek from beneath the trees.

It's a community of mommas treating one another with sincere care and understanding there will be some days we wake up and need more support than other days. We may need a word of kindness, encouragement, or sincere prayer. We may need hope to stand on even if it's borrowed. We may need a safe place to share or to just be heard by women who will lift us to the Father.

The Clearing is a place to press into the presence of peace and practice using this gift God gave us now that fear doesn't fuel our days. Depending on where we stand on our journey, I believe this community will mean something unique to each of us.

I'm so glad you're here, my friend.

God has so much in store for us. Let's continue to pursue peace together. Let's discover life in The Clearing

So much love,

Becky
